This document is intended to serve as a final report for the use of CAS-L grant funds for the Winter 2012 semester. The funds were used to support travel, conference fees, and banquet tickets for the 2012 Michigan Campus Compact for January 30. Lynn Malinoff and I were presenting on the establishment and dynamics of our initial academic service-learning partnership between my secondary biology teaching methods course and the Bright Futures After-School Program (Exposing Prospective Science Teachers to After-School Programs as an Avenue for Combating Science Illiteracy). For this partnership, prospective science teachers were required to work with one of the program sites for Bright Futures to help promote science literacy through either their currently existing clubs or establishing new clubs. Since this initial venture Dr. Malinoff and I have continued to refine our AS-L collaboration. This upcoming Fall semester will be our third consecutive semester working together.
