

Specialist of Arts in Educational Leadership*

* Note: The majority of the concentration and cognate courses are available on weekends and off-campus. Select core courses are only offered on campus.

The Specialist of Arts degree in Educational Leadership is a post-master's program for prospective and practicing educational leaders. The program may either provide advanced administration preparation for P–12 schools and institution of higher education and/or the coursework that was previously required by the state of Michigan for administrative certification.

Accreditation

The EMU College of Education is accredited by the National Council for Accreditation of Teacher Education and approved by the Michigan Department of Education for the preparation of educational personnel.

Program of Study

The specialist's degree program requires a minimum of 32 credit hours beyond the master's degree.

Students work closely with their advisers in developing a program of study that will prepare them for their career goals. Candidates for the specialist's degree in educational leadership must satisfactorily complete all work on the program of study.

The requirements outlined below provide the basic course work required for the specialist.

If students are seeking administrator's certification, additional courses will be required. A program of study may be developed to fulfill requirements for Michigan's voluntary school administrative certification and central office endorsement upon approval by the program advisor.

A. Completion of a master's degree in educational leadership or a relevant area.

B. Concentration Area: 16 hours

- EDLD 710 Leadership Theory (3)
- EDLD 714 Data-Driven Decision Management for Leaders (3)
- EDLD 740 Organizational Theory (3)

(Seven hours of core educational leadership courses. These courses in educational leadership are selected with approval of the student's adviser and reflect the professional needs and objectives of each individual Student).

C. Applied Research: 12 hours

- EDPS 621 Statistical Applications in Educational Research (2)
- EDLD 713 Field-Based Research (4)
- EDLD 787–789 Internship in Educational Administration (2–4)

D. Cognates: 6 hours

These courses are elected from either educational leadership or other areas and should complement the student's career goals.

E. Culminating Experience

The culminating experience for the specialist's degree is a review and presentation of the student's field-based research study and the student's internship experiences as set forth in his or her internship plan. This review and presentation will be conducted by the director of the intern program and the director of the field-based research study and will be scheduled during the student's last semester in the program.

Additional Program Information

- EDLD 787–789 Internship (2–4)

Faculty

Most of the Educational Leadership faculty members have been practitioners in the field of education with numerous years of experience in school administration. Their range of expertise includes the principalship, the superintendency, school community relations and advanced careers in higher education. In addition, the department uses a cadre of adjunct faculty members practicing in school leadership roles. Each faculty member takes an active role in the development of students' goals, and many of the classes are small and seminar-like in structure.
