Department of Africology and African American Studies Eastern Michigan University Ypsilanti, Michigan 48197

Dear student:

Re: AAAS Winter, 2024 Course Listings

Below is the list of AAAS course sections for Winter, 2024. (Please, share this information with your friends and associates who may need it). Among them are general education courses, such as AFC 101 (US Diversity), AFC 102 (Global Awareness), AFC 244 (US Diversity or Global Awareness), AFC 302W (Writing Intensive), and AFC 313 (Global Awareness), and AFC 351 (Knowledge of Disciplines, Soc Sci).

The General Education courses are marked with an asterisk. Like other undergraduate courses that we've scheduled for Winter, 2024, the preceding Gen Ed sections also count towards our Major and Minor in Africology and African American Studies.

A set of graduate courses is also included in the AAAS winter 2024 course listings below.

Why AAAS courses?

AAAS courses can serve students' learning and graduation needs in a variety of ways:

- To meet EMU students' General Education requirements,
- To meet the instructional needs of majors & minors in Africology and African American Studies,
- To meet the course requirements for our 12-credit Undergraduate Certificate in African Studies,
- To meet the course requirements for the 15-credit Graduate Certificate in Africology and African American Studies,
- To meet the course requirements for the 33-credit Master of Arts in Africology and African American Studies, and/or
- To meet applicable free/open electives' requirements of various EMU students' undergraduate and graduate degree programs.

If you have questions about these AFC courses, don't hesitate to contact me. My email address and contact telephone number are as follows: vokafor@emich.edu and (734) 487-3460.

Eastern Michigan University

Afc 101 Introduction to Africology and African American Studies (CRNs 20444 & 20735 (wholly online))

3 hrs

This is an introductory examination of the African American experience. It acquaints students with the trends, issues and forces that have shaped that experience; it considers the concepts of cultural adaptation, institutional development, and group self-definition; and it surveys the contemporary status and condition of African Americans.

Afc 102 Introduction to African Civilization [GEGA] (crn 23225)(wholly online)

AFC 102 Introduction to African Civilization [GEGA]

This course is designed to provide the student with an introductory knowledge of centers of African civilization from antiquity to the 1960s. Those centers include ancient Egypt, Songhai, Kilwa, and Monomotapa.

Afc 244 Dimensions of Racism [GEGA or GEKS](crn 20951, 21866, & 22041)

This course examines various theoretical approaches to the concepts of race, ethnicity, and diversity. This course offers the opportunity to acquire an understanding of the interrelated dynamics that diversity of people, culture, religious beliefs, and ideologies play in the creation of new nations; how they can determine political and/or economic alliances; how they can shape or reshape the global order; how they can influence systems of exclusion and produce practices of intolerance.

Afc 301 Research Methods in Africology & African American Studies (03 hrs)(crn 22038)

This course provides an intensive exposure to research methods in Africology and African American studies and offers an opportunity for primary research in the field.

Afc 302W Writing for African American Studies (CRN 20445)

3 hrs

This course will help students produce research papers, construct analytical reviews, and perform documentary research needed to better explore the literature, culture, and institutional and social processes that define the field of African American Studies. Prereq: ENGL121

Afc 313 Contemporary Africa: The Struggle and Prospects (CRN 20736))(wholly online)

3 hrs

This course serves as a survey of Africa's contemporary political economy. In examining postcolonial developments, the course focuses on regional and national strategies for social transformation.

Afc 351 Social Context of African American Health (3 hrs)(crn 23398)

This course examines the health status of African Americans. Explores the interplay between environment, biology and culture; folk and popular health practices; and the organization and delivery of health care. AAS 351 is a social science option for satisfying EMU's General Education Knowledge of the Disciplines requirement. Prerequisite: None

Afc 402L4 Internship Seminar in Africology and African American Studies [GELB](crn 20737)(wholly online)

The Internship Seminar in Africology and African American Studies is designed as a practicum in which majors and minors in Africology and African American Studies can acquire a practical experience of an African American organization or an organization that serves a diverse clientele.

Afc 479/592 Education for Liberation (03 hrs)(crn 23548/23551)(Hybrid online)

Course Description:

Ella Baker, perhaps the most influential organizer in the twentieth century, consistently stated "Give light and people will find a way." Like her contemporaries and those carrying on her tradition of grassroots organizing today, Baker understood social transformation as an educational process that could take place inside and outside of schools. This course explores the organizing tradition of the Black Freedom Struggle by both documenting contemporary structures of educational inequality and their historical antecedents as well as the varied social movements mobilized to upend them. It historicizes persisting structures and practices of inequality (such as segregation, school privatization, state takeovers, and the school-prison nexus), and resurfaces various alternatives pursued by activists in the past and currently pursued by those in the present. Importantly, this course moves beyond university buildings into community spaces to learn from and discuss with contemporary organizers persistent issues in schooling and the myriad ways students, community members, teachers, and administrators might collaborate with one another in pursuit of more liberatory models of schooling that embody education's liberatory potential.

Afc 504 – Politics in the African American Experience (03 hrs)(CRN 23395)(wholly online)

This course is designed to provide the student with an advanced and critical knowledge of black political behavior in the United States in its evolution from protest to contemporary, institutional politics.

Afc 506 - Advanced Studies in African Civilization (03 hrs)(CRN 22036)(wholly online)

The course is designed as an in-depth and critical study of key centers of African Civilization from antiquity to the 1960s. The student will also learn about certain fundamental ancient African cultural commonalities, albeit in the midst of linguistic and other kinds of diversity. While the course critically examines a cross-section of studies about cross-cultural influences between African civilization and other civilizations, the students will also investigate the nature of lingering controversies about the authenticity of an African antiquity.

Afc 601 - Theory and Analytical Methods in Africology (03 hrs)(CRN 21166)(Wholly Online)

This course examines the historical and intellectual roots of Afrocentricity as well as the most prominent paradigms in the discipline; it encourages the applicability of the theory through its cognitive, structural, and functional dimensions; fosters a critical thinking methodology to sharpen students' skills as critics, theoreticians, and researchers to examine the agency of African people and/or interpret the African world experience transnationally and trans-generationally.

Afc 602 Researching Black Communities (03 hrs)(CRN 22039)

Through the application of qualitative and ethnographic techniques, students will study groups, institutions and other social phenomena that affect African American communities and culture. Social research will be linked to intellectual and theoretical traditions in the field of African American studies.

Afc 603 - Capstone Internship Seminar in Africology & AAS (03 hrs)(CRN 22034)(Wholly Online)

The course is designed as a practicum by which students of the Applied Master of Arts in Africology and African American Studies can acquire a practical experience of either an African American organization or any organization that serves a diverse clientele. The seminar must be taken while a student is in an internship program. Involving an advanced and critical survey of major coping strategies typically deployed by racial and ethnic minority communities of the United States, the seminar is designed to help prepare the master's degree students for effective functioning in their future places of work.
