

General Education Review Committee meeting of February 3, 2014

At this meeting there was discussion of the function of the committee in terms of overarching program review and making recommendations for future action. It was suggested that the committee meet at the end of winter 2015 semester to evaluate feedback on its recommendations. There was also discussion of what items should be assessed and reflected upon and what form this should take. The committee agreed on specific questions to include and exclude in its review and also on certain matters of methodology. For example, it was decided to prioritize the list of items for consideration, consider what questions to ask and how to frame them, and what form a faculty survey should take.

The committee considered what questions members of the General Education Reform Committee, who will attend the next meeting, should be asked.
