HISTORY OF JOHN W. PORTER AND ENDOWMENT

John W. Porter served as EMU's 17th president from 1979-89. During the decade of his presidency EMU saw record enrollment growth, strengthening of academics, the establishment of the College of Technology, the College of Business move to downtown Ypsilanti, and the construction of the Olds Student Recreation Center. During this time the University's first doctorate, in educational leadership, was authorized. The John W. Porter College of Education Building at EMU is named for Porter as tribute to his contributions to EMU.

John W. Porter

Porter served as state superintendent of public instruction for Michigan's schools. At age 38, he was the youngest chief state school officer in the nation and also the first African American to serve as a state's head of schools. After leaving Eastern, Porter served for two years as superintendent of the Detroit Public Schools.

U.S. Presidents Johnson, Nixon, Ford, Carter and Clinton all appointed Porter to commissions and councils addressing higher education, employment, and mental health.

Porter was born in Fort Wayne, Indiana on Aug. 13, 1931. He received his undergraduate degree from Albion College, where he played varsity basketball and was selected the most valuable player in Albion's conference. He earned a master's degree in Counseling and Guidance and a doctorate in Higher Education Administration from Michigan State University.
