

Call for Papers for special issue of Impact: A Journal of Community and Cultural Inquiry in Education documenting Dr. Peter Beilharz and Dr. Sian Supski's October 2024 visit.

A PS for PNS: Reflections on and with Drs. Peter Beilharz and Sian Supski

In October 2024, Eastern Michigan University had the privilege of hosting Dr. Peter Beilharz and Dr. Sian Supski for several events sponsored by the College of Education.

To further conversations started in the events and to document their visit, the Spring edition of Impact: A Journal of Community and Cultural Inquiry in Education will feature a symposium of responses from those of us lucky enough to attend one of these events. As such, we are calling for submissions in a wide range of genres, styles, and voices that are as unique as all of us, as well as our varied experiences throughout their stay.

From a labor history walk through Ypsilanti to conversations on writing and thinking to Peter's discussion of the impact of Fordism and modernity and Sian's talk about observations and interpretations of everyday life, these interactions provided myriad opportunities for rich engagement, personal reflection, and critical thought.

Some examples of submissions include, but are not limited to, essays or poems engaging in further analysis of Fordism and modernity, considering the importance of place and everyday life, and reflecting on your ideas of utopia.

Tentative Due Date: January, 10th, 2025

Please reach out to Rachel Robbins-Whited (rrobbin4@emich.edu) and Rachel Dick (rdick2@emich.edu) if you're interested in submitting.

Review Impact's style/citation guidelines for submissions:

<https://drive.google.com/file/d/1rqapwbGVxlcDjZeuwjKlgZ5aaUp3PS41/view>