

The symposium is devoted to get together unique students from different research backgrounds that shows potential breakthrough contribution in their field.

She will represent her current research and Eastern Michigan University, College of Technology, Polymers & Coatings Technology in San Francisco.

This symposium is also important in a way that this is the first time in Eastern Michigan University history, a graduate student will attend.

She would like to thank her mentor and advisor Dr. Mannari