

Digital Divas at EMU

November 2, 2018

Eastern Michigan University Construction Management program attended Digital Diva Event this year. As a part of Women in Construction project, faculty and students from Construction Management program represented the program. They made various activities to introduce the program to the students. Program undergrad and graduate students informed attendees why Construction Management Program is important and what tempting was for them to choose construction field. Faculty gave brief information about the women percentage in construction and how it would be increased. Construction is the biggest industry in the World. Experienced workforce shortage problem in construction can be resolved with increasing women numbers in construction. While informing about the program, students constructed various buildings, bridges and shapes with connects. During the event, Construction Management Program created fun activities for students and they demonstrated how successful they are in construction.
