Nancy Armstrong
"Biopolitics Before ‘Biopolitics’"

Jonathon Elmer
"The Paradigm of Play"

Jonathon Elmer is Professor of English at Indiana University, where he served for several years as chair, and now serves as Director of the College Arts and Humanities Institute. He is author of two books, On Lingering and Being Last: Race and Sovereignty in the New World (Fordham 2008), and Reading at the Social Limit: Affect, Mass Culture, and Edgar Allan Poe (Stanford 1995). His articles, on figures ranging from Jefferson and Neal to Lecan, Luhmann, Lechter, and Lebowski, have appeared in a range of journals, including American Literature, American Literary History, diacritics, boundary 2, J19: The Journal of Nineteenth-Century Americanists, and Cultural Critique. He is currently at work on two large projects, one a study of the concept of play in twentieth-century aesthetic and social thought, and another titled “Remedial Poe,” focused on problems of mediation as they vex our narratives of cultural history.
