Policy	Additional Compensation Guidelines
Statement	Additional compensation is supplemental pay for additional work outside of the employee’s regular job duties or based on an established agreement. Policy Requirements Additional compensation cannot be awarded because an employee works “more hours” based on the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA). One FLSA requirement is to determine exemption status for each position. The two types of exemptions are non-exempt and exempt. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Non-exempt employees, who perform additional work related to their University responsibilities in addition to the 40-hour workweek, are to be paid overtime. These positions generally perform operational functions such as routine clerical, maintenance work, and checking and inspecting equipment.</li> <li>• Exempt employees do not receive additional compensation for work related to their University responsibilities or for additional duties as assigned within the scope of their position. Exempt employees are also not eligible for overtime, even though it may cause them to work more than 40 hours a week. FLSA exemption categories are administrative, executive, professional, highly skilled computer professionals, and outside sales positions that pass the exemption test and require discretion and independent judgment in job performance.</li> </ul> Additional compensation must be in accordance with applicable law, IRS regulations, collective bargaining agreements, and university policies.
Philosophy	The University is committed to providing a competitive total compensation package that attracts, retains, and motivates a high quality and diverse workforce. This policy allows for the flexibility to request and process additional compensation for employees.
