Honors Contract Hours. The student contracts two courses with a PSY prefix for Honors Credit. Introductory Psychology (PSY 101 and PSY 103) cannot be contracted for the Psychology Department Honors program, because they are a part of the Gen Ed Honors Program.

The student and instructor together decide what the student will do to make the course an honors course. The addition should be an enrichment and not just busywork. An Honors Contract is filled out, signed, and given to the Psychology Honors Advisor. The forms are available on the Honors College website. Grading is the same as normally applies in the course being contracted. The Honors Work is not separately graded.

Individual Reading and Research: Thesis is required.

The student is enrolled in Individual Reading for at least 3 credit hours to get the background knowledge for the Honors Thesis and then in at least 3 credit hours of Individual Research to do the thesis project. Grading is the same as normally applies in these courses. The maximum is 6 hours in Reading and 6 hours in Research.

It is suggested that the Reading be done during the Junior year with a faculty member who is an expert in the area. This person will chair the Honors Thesis Committee. The Research should be started as promptly as possible in the Senior year to ensure that there is enough time to finish the project, write it up, and defend it.

The Honors Thesis Committee consists of at least two faculty members, the faculty member with whom the reading is done and at least one other. The project must be approved by all members of the Honors Thesis Committee before it is undertaken. Prior to the thesis proposal meeting, each committee member should have a copy of the thesis proposal. All members of the Honors Thesis Committee must sign an Initial Approval form that they accept the project. The form is attached. Upon signing the form, the original should be filed with the Psychology Honors Advisor.

Prior to beginning research with humans or animals, the appropriate Research Review Committee must approve the research. The 2-page summary can be used to file the research with the Honors College.

The thesis must also be defended before the Honors Thesis Committee. They may agree that to have a presentation at the Undergraduate Symposium or at a professional conference substitute for the thesis defense. Each committee member should have a copy of the thesis prior to the defense or presentation. An additional copy should be available in the Psychology Department Office for whomever would like to read it. The Final Approval form is part of the Title page of the thesis.

All theses should use standard APA format, except for the Title page, Abstract, and Table of Contents. For these initial pages and elements, as well as for the number of copies, follow the instructions for Honors Theses (or Senior Theses) from the Honors College.
